

Hainan Island

Where is Hainan Island?

The red marker in the centre of the map below shows the position of Hainan Island. Vietnam and Thailand are to the west, Philippines is to the east, Indonesia and Malaysia are to the south, and China mainland is to the north. You can use the Google map below to explore the region.

```
{mosmap width='100%'|height='400'|zoom='3'|mapType='Hybrid'|text=""|tooltip='Hainan'|lat='19.097275'|lon='109.685057'}
```

Why Cycle in Hainan?

Hainan is a unique experience. It offers an exciting mix of China and South-East Asia. Hainan is part of China, so you get to experience the people, culture, food, and villages that make China such a rewarding travel experience. Hainan is also its own island in the middle of South-East Asia offering a tropical climate, beaches, jungle, mountains and clean air away from the big polluted cities of the Chinese mainland.

Hainan in the Western Media

Hainan appears on the www.concierge.com 'Top 10 2008 Travel It List'

<http://www.concierge.com/ideas/hotspots/articles/1685>